INTRODUCTION

"Any glimpse into the life of an animal quickens our own and makes it so much the larger and better in every way".

John Muir

Astrology reveals the effect of the planets, stars and orbital objects on life on earth. Most of us are familiar with the form of astrology that reveals human fate and foibles, but what of other life on earth? Since time immemorial astrologers have also been predicting big world events via the stars but can the same principles also be applied to the smaller, but nevertheless vital creatures that live on our earth? The answer is, of course, yes! Animals and birds, and in particular domesticated animals and birds or pets, play an important role in many people's lives. Understanding a little about your pets' personalities can help you as owners (although some would argue that their pets 'own' them) become better able to nurture your pets. The purpose of this report is to help you, in a general manner, gain some insights into the nature of your pet. Much is written and screened about the sacrifices made by the animal kingdom. This is a fun, and yet somewhat serious method of helping us to redress the balance. Arguably cats and dogs are the most common pets in most modern-day households. They certainly get the most attention. You have only to think of animals and famous television and film dogs such as Lassie, Benji and Rin Tin Tin spring to mind. Equally cats feature largely on the silver screen (and in fact have an entire Andrew Lloyd Webber musical dedicated to them). Nevertheless there is a wide range of other animals who also dominate the pet world – horses, rabbits, ferrets, hamsters, mice, pigs, guinea pigs, fish, birds, and even snakes to name a few. They all have their unique way of helping us to be better people, principally because they bypass our minds and tough exteriors and appeal directly to our heart strings. Therefore these principles can be applied to most pets. Those of you who have formed a close bond with your beloved pet will know that they have unique personalities whether they are little or big critters. Ideally each of you would have recorded the exact time, place and date of your pet's birth. This would provide the most accurate of records. However, it is more likely that you know at best the date and place of birth, or perhaps at a stretch the closest day. As such this report has been based mainly on Sun Sign astrology. This is not the most accurate form of astrology but does provide a good starting point and some key tips. If you would like to know more then you may be interested in consulting a professional astrologer.

PERSONALITY

""Animals are reliable, many full of love, true in their affections, predictable in their actions, grateful and loyal. Difficult standards for people to live up to".

- Alfred A. Montapert

The Sun is in Aquarius

If you wanted a pet with a difference then Milly is the right one for you. She is quirky, lively and one of a kind. Right from the moment you set eyes on this Aquarian pet, you can see at she stands out from the rest of the species. This may be due to unusual markings or distinctive features, or it could be her authentic personality. Your Milly is determined to be an individual from a young age. This can be both endearing and infuriating! You may find yourself alternately laughing, and growling, at Milly's erratic antics. Your Aquarian pet is a born entertainer as long as you grant her a healthy dose of independence. Milly does not perform on request, but rather as a way of expressing her unique personality. She is a happy-go-lucky pet, generally good natured and gregarious. Milly is likely to be happy to be part of a busy, and lively household or live with a sociable individual as long as she is recognized as a valuable member of this tribe. Milly has above average intelligence for her species (so no you are not imagining it) and she needs a stimulating environment. Therefore you need to change her habitat on a regular basis, whether this is a cage, house, stable or field. Your Milly is certainly unique, so determined and intelligent that she may think that she does not have to conform to the usual standards of behaviour required by her species. In fact you may have noticed that Milly sometimes thinks she is more human than animal? It is no wonder you are so often surprised and delighted by this extraordinary pet.

The Sun is Conjunct Jupiter

In astrology the outer planets are considered highly influential when they draw close to the personal points in a birth chart. Here the positive planet Jupiter is affecting your pet's personality. If Milly is born with a sunny and extroverted personality then this larger than life planet will emphasize these traits. Hence Milly is likely to be more bouncy, playful and attention seeking than her counterparts. If you enjoy these qualities then you will delight in your pet's exuberance. If your pet has been born under the influence of a more introverted Zodiac Sign then you are likely to notice the difference between her and other members of her species. For instance your Earth Sign pet may not be as stodgy and quiet as her cohorts. Alternatively she may be twice as stubborn. This planet works to magnify traits, showing your pet in her best light most of the time, but not always. Generally speaking others are likely to fall for her charms as well. This is the dog whose friends and family members shower with gifts and attention. Strangers may also find it hard to resist Milly's natural charisma. If you want to compete in the show arena, on the race course or in any competition, then Milly is likely to turn heads and win prizes. Afterall the planet Jupiter is associated with the company of Kings and other worldly rewards.

LIFESTYLE

" Most pets display so many humanlike traits and emotions it's easy to forget they're not gifted with the English language and then get snubbed when we talk to them and they don't say anything back."

- Stephenie Geist

The Sun is in Aquarius

Milly prefers a busy and social lifestyle, as she is easily bored. This is true no matter what type of animal your Aquarian pet. For instance if Milly is a small rodent then she likes to be taken out of her cage and handled more often than her counterparts. If your Aquarian pet is a bird then you could schedule time for her to roam free. Even your aquatic pets may prefer a location in a busy part of your home, rather than a quiet corner. Milly prefers freedom to containment and lively activities rather than boredom. It is your job to provide stimulation. Nurturing Milly is not about cuddles but is about providing new and exciting toys, activities and social engagements. Boredom is the fastest way to frustrate, and perhaps even depress, your pet. Milly is sociable but not necessarily particularly loyal to one person. Milly sees herself as a valuable member of a team and is loyal to the family or tribe, rather than to a particular individual. If Milly has only one owner then she can be loyal but only if she is an integral part of her owner's everyday life. Recall to mind the image of someone riding a motorbike with a dog perched on the front and you will understand the lifestyle needs of your Aquarian pet. Your canine Aquarian loves the precarious position on the bike, the feel of the wind and freedom of the wide open road. If you do too then this is the pet for you.

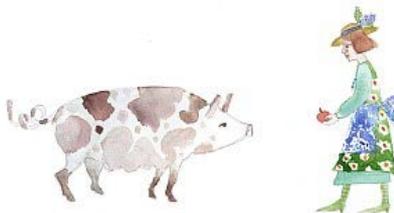

HEALTH AND DIET

*"The kind man feeds his beast before sitting down to dinner."
- "Hebrew Prophet"*

The Sun is in Aquarius

Your Milly has no innate sense of danger. Therefore one of your most prominent health concerns is out of the ordinary, as is your pet. Your primary concern is for Milly's safety. This is the canine who sidles up to strange and aggressive dogs wanting to be friends, only to find herself embroiled in a tribal war. Your lovable pet likes to chew on everything including the electric wires! Your feline Aquarian is a high wire tight rope walker and proves the theory that cats have nine lives, while disproving the one that cats always land on their feet! You get the picture? If an outdoor pet then your wild and wondrous Milly also has a tendency to bring home wild life wanting to be praised for her efforts. Therefore you may need to provide meals in a timely fashion to try to ensure that Milly has a full stomach before going outdoors. Milly is not particularly fussed about regular eating times, preferring to feed in between other activities, when she remembers. Luckily Milly has a pretty tough constitution for her species. She is likely to keep going until exhausted and then just stop. In astrology Aquarius rules the ankles and so these may be of concern at some stage. You are more likely to be concerned about grooming than Milly, who is likely to have a thick and wiry coat (depending on the species). Keeping this tamed may be a challenge and you may resort to a regular professional grooming service.

TRAINING

*"Lots of people talk to animals.... Not very many listen, though.... That's the problem."
- Benjamin Hoff, The Tao of Pooh*

Mercury is in Capricorn

The planet Mercury is never very far from the Sun. Therefore if you know the day on which your pet was born then it is likely that you also know the Zodiac Sign for the Messenger of the Gods. On reading this section on training you will soon know whether or not you have the correct Zodiac Sign for the planet Mercury by the traits depicted. If so you will pick up some handy hints on how your pet learns, and how to communicate with your pet. In this case Milly's Mercury may be in the Sign of Capricorn indicating that Milly has an innate sense of discipline and should, therefore, be easy to train. This does depend on other Astrological influences. Nevertheless your pet is well suited to a practical training regime. She prefers a routine and responds best to a regular training schedule, and consistency. Erratic moods and commands are likely to make Milly nervous. She does not respond well to spontaneous decisions, outings etc.... Rather your pet likes regular exercise, feeding times and household routines. You should always feed Milly in the same place out of her familiar eating bowls or receptacles. Milly is comforted by familiarity. Given Milly's propensity for self-discipline, you may like to consider formal education. For instance a canine Capricorn makes a very good candidate for the Armed Forces or as a Guide Dog for the visually impaired. Horses may excel at equestrian events such as Dressage. Birds may be trained for work and so forth.

OWNER

*"We can judge the heart of a man by his treatment of animals."
- "Immanuel Kant*

Venus is in Pisces

The planet Venus is never very far from the Sun in the Zodiac. Therefore if you know the day on which your pet was born then it is likely that you also know the Zodiac Sign for the planet of relationships. On reading this section on how your pet relates you will soon know whether or not you have the correct Zodiac Sign for the planet Venus. If so you will pick up some handy hints on what your pet needs from you as an owner. In this case Milly has the planet Venus in the Zodiac Sign of Pisces indicating that she needs a soft and loving owner. Milly is unlikely to respond well to a stern or aggressive person. This is a loving pet, which yearns for praise and unconditional love in return. Therefore she is likely to be compatible with owners with strong Virgo, Taurus, Capricorn, Scorpio, Cancerian and Piscean influences. However, Milly is unlikely to flourish under the influence of the Masculine Zodiac Signs of Gemini, Libra, Aquarius, Aries, Leo and Sagittarius.

TEMPERAMENT

"No animal should ever jump up on the dining-room furniture unless absolutely certain that he can hold his own in the conversation."

- Fran Lebowitz

Mars is in Capricorn

Temperament is described in the dictionary as the combination of mental, physical, and emotional traits; natural predisposition. In an animal the temperament is the general attitude displayed toward people and other animals. Experts say that it is a combination of inherited and acquired traits. These influence the animal's behaviour. They say that while much of an animal's temperament is inherited it is also influenced by the animal's environment, including the actions of the owner. Therefore an understanding of your pet's basic nature can help you shape your animal's behaviour. For instance you can help influence dominant tendencies in your young pet so that he or she matures into a friendly, confident adult, rather than a bossy pet who dominates other animals, or an animal that uses aggression to get his or her way with humans and other dogs. Some trainers, breeders and animal shelters use temperament testing to determine whether or not an animal is suited for certain roles such as a family pet, or a guide dog for the blind, or police dogs. This section of the report is aimed at giving hints on your animal's temperament and it is suggested that you consult an expert if you would like further information.

In your case you have a pet with a very serious disposition, a rather calm temperament and a natural disposition for regular activity. Milly is likely to be stubborn, but generally pleasant unless roused. Even then this is not an overly aggressive pet. Milly may get a little cranky as he or she gets old and frail but you have a faithful and peaceful companion.

Conclusion

*"Until one has loved an animal, a part of one's soul remains unawakened."
- Anatole France*

It is hard to sum up in words the importance of the role that animals play in life, let alone those who become entwined in our daily lives. In the recent scientists have proven, what many have known for centuries that some species of animals possess intelligence. However, it is the emotional intelligence that speaks volumes to us humans. Indeed as Anatole France says in the quotation above, animals are indeed a gift from some unknown source, a source meaning to awaken the very best in human nature. Creatures great and small tug at our heart strings and teach us invaluable lessons. This report is intended to help repay the favour and in a small way help us understand how to best nurture and sustain our animal counterparts. No matter what species of animal you have drawn into your life, this report may give you a better understanding of his or her nature. Through understanding comes tolerance, care and love.
